

Physicians in areas without a component medical society are considered "at-large" members unless they choose to join an adjacent society.