Day at the Capitol 2014

Dozens of physicians, medical students and residents descended on the state Capitol in St. Paul on March 13 as part of the MMA’s annual Day at the Capitol.

The MMA’s legislative team briefed participants on top priorities for the session. Then, physicians, students and residents met with their representatives and senators to discuss health care issues.

Sen. Julie Rosen (R-Fairmont) spoke to the group on a range of topics including the advanced practice registered nurses’ push for independent practice, prohibiting minors from using tanning devices and medical marijuana.

1 Rep. Tom Huntley (DFL-Duluth) spoke with medical students before the event.
3 Lisa Mattson, M.D., and Lisa Erickson, M.D., conversed with Rep. Sarah Anderson (R-Plymouth) outside the House chambers.
4 Sen. Julie Rosen (R-Fairmont) reviewed several health care bills with the group.
5 Sen. John Marty (DFL-Roseville) meets with Mac Baird, M.D., and Laurel Ries, M.D.
6 Day at the Capitol attendees were briefed on a number of health care bills currently working through the Legislature.
